Обо мне

I have been programming for about three years. I started by solving ordinary algorithmic problems in C++ at the university. Over time, I became interested in web development, in particular the backend. I try not to stand still, but constantly replenish my stack with new technologies and improve the knowledge already acquired in depth. In addition to programming, I am fond of reading science fiction books and camping. In the future, I want to teach and share programming experience with other people.
